

Google Translate Disclaimer

Google Translate

Google Translate – an automatic translation service that uses state-of-the-art technology, not human translators, to translate text – provides instant translations in many different languages. By providing these translations, we hope to make essential information available to the diverse populations that visit Children’s Cove every day. However, please be aware that, since translations are done by machine, they may not always be perfect. (Please see our legal disclaimer at the bottom of this page.)

How do I use Google Translate?

Simply click on the “Translate” link at the top any page, and then choose a language from the drop down menu. Google Translate will display the translated text without reloading or redirecting you from your page. If you click on a link in the translated page, the linked web page also will be translated automatically for you – allowing you to seamlessly browse through our website in your language.

Why doesn’t the language I chose display properly?

In order to view a page in a particular language, your browser must have that language pack installed. To download appropriate language packs, visit the website for your browser.

Why did half of my text disappear – or my browser just freeze?

Google Translate breaks text into a series of 500-character chunks and continuously sends them back and forth until the entire page has been translated. This processing system occasionally creates confusion in how a particular block of text is translated. Also, if the page is very long or your computer processor is not powerful enough, it may cause your browser to freeze.

What is automatic translation?

Automatic translation detects patterns in documents that already have been translated by human translators. Using those patterns as a guide, automatic translators such as Google Translate are able to make intelligent guesses as to what an appropriate translation should be. Because the translations are generated by machine, not all translations will be perfect.

What can I do to improve the translation quality?

Even today’s most sophisticated software can’t translate at the fluency of a native speaker or professional translator. If you encounter a translation that doesn’t seem right, click on the phrase in question – and sometimes Google Translate will have alternative translation available.

Legal Disclaimer

Children’s Cove provides this link to Google Translate as a courtesy to visitors to its website. Children’s Cove does not own, manage or control any aspect of Google Translate, and is not responsible for the translations provided by Google Translate. Children’s Cove does not make any promises, assurances, or guarantees as to the accuracy, reliability, or timeliness of the translations provided. Children’s Cove can only verify the validity and accuracy of the information provided in English and, because of this, the English version of our website is the official text. Viewers who rely on information through Google Translate on our web site do so at their own risk. Children’s Cove shall not be liable for any inaccuracies or errors in the translation and shall not accept liability for any loss, damage, or other problem, including without limitation, indirect or consequential loss or damage arising from or in connection with use of the Google Translate Service. By using Google Translate you understand and agree to this disclaimer. If there are any concerns regarding the accuracy of the information presented within the translated versions of our site, please refer back to the official English-language website.